Health for all Urban Residents:

A Model Community Pact with a Neighbouring Hospital by a Resident Welfare Association or a Senior Resident Association

The context in which we need to act directly and immediately:

The following proposal contains the benefits of family doctor and community doctor facilities and better human relations in an institutional way which is being felt as essential for the welfare of urban middle-class families. This is particularly needed in a political context in which there is no clear intention to introduce gradually a nationwide network of institutionalized universal social security systems for all. We have only piecemeal welfare schemes for target groups, which are annually budgeted by the governments. As a consequence, as estimated by the Bengaluru-based Narayana Health Hospitals, there are 40% of Indians and among them, a higher percentage of urban residents are left out of the government health insurance schemes like Ayushman Bharat. They have to take care of themselves. In any case, health insurance in India is, at present understood to cover only the expenses of serious disease treatment, rather than health risks and human welfare.

At the same time, hospital expenses are becoming unbearable for a middle-class family. Senior citizens are the first victims of this situation, as traditional health insurance does not cover comprehensive care, including day-to-day medical expenses and benign treatments. As huge amounts are to be paid suddenly, families are getting indebted and impoverished. The private health care and medical institutions and health professionals, though predominant in the economy of this sector, they are not being recognised by the state policies as the only ultimate solution for keeping good health for all citizens. In times of emergencies like the one that we experienced at the time of COVID-19, the local infrastructure and local healthcare professionals can and would have volunteered to attend to issues in the area immediately at a low cost, instead of outsiders. Wherever a few of them were permitted, they were highly discredited for having charged the one-time patients opportunistically.

Even during normal times, at present, there are no channels for the private sector establishments to express or learn to express their Social Responsibility towards the local communities in the area among whom the hospitals are working and their professionals are living. On the other hand, in some situations, some hospitals are, now and then, subjected to blackmail, vandalism and forced contributions by rowdy elements. In such situations, they need the intervention of the local community elders in the RWAs.

At present, dealing directly with health insurance companies, especially with the nationalized ones is proving very bureaucratic, risky, litigious and frustrating. Usually, middlemen like brokers or agents attached to them are mostly unskilled and not legally responsible. The premiums are high, especially for the aged, while the companies claim to be incurring losses due to management issues. The fact that life insurance is thriving better than health insurance indicates that the old mindset of insecurity is still persisting among the people.

Under these circumstances, it is always better for the urban residents that whatever they spend for health purposes, should go to the neighbouring healthservice providers directly. It is a pact for mutual benefit and would create humane relations. The local residents can ensure blood collection, organ donation and humanitarian assistance to the patients. They might participate in medical research. Grateful patients and NRIs might donate for additional facilities. NRI doctors can show their Social Responsibility by participating in the campaigns of the hospital of their areas of origin.

Inspired by the new economic culture that is emerging in the country, hospitals and clinics can be more transparent and accountable to society. Sincere implementation of Patients Charter is one of the rights of the Consumer. Further, we get the commitment from the hospitals that the discounts they offer would be based on their chart of current tariffs that they are charging in general to the general public. This is verifiable and comparable as the charts would be made visible at the time of entering the MoU.

In future, the healthcare professionals and the urban residents in RWAs together, would plead with municipal, state and national governments to subsidise the expenses incurred by the neighbouring hospitals on certain categories of persons who are chosen by the governments for special benefits under their schemes, such as Arogyadaan, etc. The merit of this model MoU is that the RWA or the SCA or both of them together can solve or cover their health risks by negotiating mutually acceptable terms in a contract with a neighbouring hospital. For a vast country like India, governments cannot set up and run government hospitals accessible to all and everywhere. The state should be content with, ultimately facilitating platforms for direct dialogue and cooperation between the consumers and the service-providers, and eventually subsidise some operations in the interests of equity and social justice. Further, massive pension funds should be allowed to invest in pharmaceutical and medical research and infrastructure. Since, insurance is not a capital-intensive business but a matter of numbers, it should be self-managed by all concerned like RWAs, pensioners, hospitals, doctors, nurses, medical shops, pharmaceutical firms, Testing laboratories, old age homes and other service providers and scientists as cooperative shareholders. The governments need to intervene, eventually to fill in the deficits, whenever they occur with our tax money.

Suggested terms of the Memorandum of Agreement:

I. Membership Card as per the MoU: Rs. 1,000 (?) per head. Makes the RWA resident eligible for the following facilities: Minimum membership: 100 (?) cards. 1.
